"Mabel at the Wheel"

Packed to the utmost capacity last night with (without exaggeration) hundreds turned away—the house roared at Charlie and sat watching with amazement the amazing automobile race for the "Grand Prix"—Charlie's eccentricities and drolleries, combined with the wonderful track race—the Spill—and the subsequent finish, created quite a stir among the many patrons of the National.

For your own sake do not miss this. It is unique!

Mrs. Pond's New Game is Popular.

Mrs. Charles Fremont Pond, wife of Admiral Pond, has the honor of being awarded a patent for an invention that is so entirely original that those who have become acquainted with Mrs. Pond's latest invention are extravagant in their praises of it. The invention is a new card game, "Constitution," which Mrs. Pond introduced at a tea at the home of Mrs. C. J. Queen a few days ago. The other guests comprised women expert at bridge and other card games, and most of the party were southern women. Mrs. Pond is one of the prominent officials in the Daughters of the Confederacy and of the Daughters of the Revolution.

The game is played with a deck of cards similar to an ordinary pack. The cards are now on the market, and are most attractive. Several parties have been given at which Mrs. Pond has been explaining the game to her friends, and as she is leaving soon to join Admiral Pond on the Atlantic coast, probably several more will be given, as the game has created no end of favorable comment.

With the deck comes a concisely written direction, explaining the intricacies of the game. As Mrs. Pond writes:

The object of this game is to secure as many votes as possible in order to elect the presidential candidate.

Any former president of the United States, with his principal opposing candidate, or future nominee for the presidency of the United States, may be voted for in this game. The game differs from most of the other well-known games of cards in that the number of tricks taken does not count in the score, but rather, the value of the individual cards in the tricks.

While skill in playing the cards knowing when to play, when to throw off, when to hold back, is extremely important, yet the element of luck enters not only in the dealing, but, as well, in the playing of the cards, there being many unexpected turns in the taking of the tricks, sometimes baffling even skill, so that the game simulates very closely the varying fortunes for which many of our most important political contests have been noted. How often have political fortunes been made or broken by the "turn of a card" and how often in political contests at the last moment has victory been wrested from apparent defeat!

The War Game. Constitution is a game for four players, but may be played with three or two players and one or two dummies.

The players play as partners, two and two.—San Francisco Examiner, February 20.

Following Mrs. Vernon Castle.

When Mrs. Vernon Castle starts a fad it is pretty certain to have a wide vogue. Note the matter of bobbing the hair last year. Girls of 15 went to their hair dressers and emerged shorn of their locks up to the ears. And now Mrs. Castle has another fancy, and it becomes a fad, like hair-bobbing, every girl of importance will own a live, chattering monkey, for Mrs. Castle has gone in for monkeys, and her latest acquisition, Rastus, is her constant companion on her tour in "Watch Your Step."

Damon was no more keen on Pythias than Mrs. Castle is on Rastus. He is but one of many monkeys she owns, but he is reigning emperor of her heart. He is a little fellow, but he is smart. He imitates her in everything. When she sits in her dressing room after each performance and writes to her husband, who is training for the English aviation corps at Fortress Monroe, Rastus demands a piece of paper, and with either a pencil or pen and ink marks on the paper just like his mistress, and this is sent to Vernon.

While Mrs. Castle is making up (as even the most beautiful and famous of stage stars have to do), Rastus watches her intently, and when she goes on the stage, Rastus takes up the eye pencil and marks his brows, uses the rabbit's foot brush for the cheeks and even daubs himself with lip rouge. If she eats candy, he eats it; if she stoops over to button a shoe in the absence of a maid, Rastus buttons his shoes (for he wears them when he is dressed for the theater in full evening attire). Rastus has a penchant for eating everything that is not hidden. It makes little difference what it is—cosmetics, handkerchiefs, smelling salts—anything, but he is wise, for when he has eaten not wisely but too well, he hops to the dressing stand, and eats just enough soap to act as an emetic.

Has Some Other Pets. Besides Rastus Mrs. Castle carries with her on tour five guinea pigs, four dogs, one being a prize winning Boston bull named Zowie, and a German sheep dog, trained for police duty, which was a great favorite of Mr. Castle, and for which he paid $300. And because Mrs. Castle is so fond of pets, virtually all the "Watch Your Step" feminine principals and lesser lights have gone in for live stock of one kind or another. The special train which always carries the company looks like

San Francisco's Fashion Show. The fashion show to be given at the Palace Hotel next Saturday afternoon and evening for the benefit of three local charities, the San Francisco Maternity, the Doctors' Daughters and the Home for Incurables, is engaging the attention and support of score of society families. So great was the demand for boxes for the affair that the patronesses were obliged to increase the number originally intended, 18 to 25.

Some of society's prettiest girls will be seen in the season's loveliest gowns, coats, cloaks, hats, shoes and accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Crane will dance at both performances, and a number of other interesting features are being prepared.

The box holders are Mesdames James A. Black, William Brees, Frederick Bradley, William Cluff, Herbert Fleischacker, Alexander Hamilton, Marcus Koshland, Leon Roos, J. Stern, Joseph D. Grant, Richard Heimann, H. Levi, Eugene Lent, William H. Taylor, Frank H. Proctor, E. O. McCormick, Charles R. McCormick, Walter Martin, H. M. A. Miller, William Matson, Latham McMullin, Cyrus Walker and Lapham.

Some of the girls who will pose as walking models for the fashion review are Misses Margaret Nichols, Marion Newhall, Mrs. James Parker, Mrs. Albert Rees, Miss Elva de Pue and a dozen or so under the direction of Miss de Pue, in a skit which will necessitate the wearing of sport clothes.

I. Magnin & Co. are furnishing all the garments to be worn and Grover Magnin is staging the show. The firm is sparing no expense or pains to make the review one of the most artistic events of the year.—San Francisco Examiner.

Navy League Tea Dance.

The newly organized San Francisco Chapter, Woman's Section of the Navy League, will give a leap year dancette at the Fairmont Hotel, February 29, from 4 to 7 p. m. The plans are for an informal but strictly military affair. Army and navy officers will be assisted in their novel duties as hosts by a group of ladies in the uniforms of army and navy nurses. Mrs. William T. Sesson is chairman and Mrs. Squire Varick Mooney has charge of the reservations. Others on the committee are Mrs. Daniel C. Heger, Mrs. William Watson Wymore, Mrs. Francis M. Wright, Mrs. Kirby Crittenden and Mrs. Ella M. Sexton. The prices are $1, admission including refreshments, and $1 extra for table reservations. Table may be reserved by applying to Mrs. Squire Varick Mooney, 2010 Broadway, telephone West 955. Tickets are on sale at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s and at the newstands of the St. Francis and Fairmont hotels. The proceeds are to be used to carry on the work of the league, which has no membership dues. Among the patronesses are Mrs. J. Franklin Bell, Mrs. Charles Gove, Mrs. F. M. Benne, Mrs. Eleanor Martin, Mrs. William G. Irwin, Mrs. C. Frederick Kohl, Miss Laura McKinstry, Mrs. Frank B. Anderson, Mrs. Mountford Wilson, Mrs. J. B. Crockett, Mrs. Samuel Knight, Mrs. H. W. Scott, Mrs. Daniel T. Murphy, Mrs. Charles C. Moore, Mrs. William Hinckley Taylor, Mrs. Philip B. Bowles, Mrs. George Lent, Mrs. Joseph S. Moody, Mrs. Russell Wilson.—San Francisco Argonaut.

In Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Filler have been the incentive for much entertaining in Washington, D. C., where they are visiting. Among those who have entertained in their honor are Judge and Mrs. Sidney Ballou and Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Baldwin.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A San Francisco Sensation. SAN FRANCISCO.—Mrs. Charles Templeton Crocker, whose gowns on all occasions may always be depended upon to excite thrills of envy in the souls of less fortunate women, will surpass all of her former bounds of sumptuousness and originality in the costume which she is to wear as queen of the Mardi Gras, which is to take place at the Palace Hotel, Tuesday evening, March 7th, for the benefit of the Children's Hospital.

It is to represent a pink-tipped lotus lily sparkling in the midnight dew. The skirt will be a lotus lily from which Mrs. Crocker will emerge in a resplendent bodice of tulle, lotus petals and iridescent jewels imitative of dew drops. The skirt will also be sprinkled with the jewels. When she enters with her court, drawn upon a Buddha throne of golden lotus, the lights will be dimmed, and the moonlight will glimmer through fruit boughs and daisies upon the gown, which will glisten like a thousand stars. In the court will be eight of the most charming young women of the smart set. Mrs. Samuel Hopkins will be gown as a larkspur, Mrs. Talbot Walker as a nasturtium, Miss Marian Newhall as a daisy, Mrs. Arthur Chesebrough as a snowball, Miss Gertrude Hopkins as a fuchsia, Miss Marian Zeile as a jonquil, Mrs. J. Cheever Cowden as a rambler rose, Mrs. Rudolph Schilling as a bluebell. The courtiers, ruled over by Stan-
